

Bicycle Kings Set for Times Classic Saturday

Today is "Butterfly" day for entrants in Saturday's Times Centennial Bicycle Race.

Training is over and riders in both the Novice event from Duncan to Victoria and the 100-mile Open chase from Qualicum will be plagued with fluttery feelings in their stomachs until starting guns sound Saturday morning.

Suspense will end for athletes in the Open events when J. Craig Reid, chairman of the Qualicum village commission, starts them on their way at 6:30 a.m.

Mayor Jack Dobson will trigger the starting gun at 7:45 for the novice event, limited to B.C. residents who have no previous racing experience.

Tyre pedallers, racing for a first prize of a trip to the 1958 baseball world series, are expected to start arriving at the Douglas St. finishing line in front of the Times shortly before 10 a.m.

Several champions listed in the field of 46 riders in the Qualicum-Victoria marathon could threaten the Canadian 100-mile record of four hours, five minutes held by Pat Murphy of Toronto.

Although they are expected to hit the home stretch shortly before 11, leaders in the Open scramble could complete the run to Victoria in close to four hours, which would be the winner of the first prize—a trip via Canadian Pacific Air Lines, to the world amateur cycling championships in France—to the finish line about 10:35.

Biggest crowds along the route are expected to gather at Nanaimo and Duncan, where special prizes will be awarded to leading riders, who should reach Nanaimo about 7:45 and be at Duncan around 9. A special prize will also be awarded to the first rider past Chemainus, approximately the half-way point.

A good number of spectators is also expected to watch the pedal stars on their climb up the Malahat, where hopes of many riders will probably be crushed, and during their descent to Goldstream, when they should hit speeds around 50 miles per hour.

RCMP cars will escort riders in both events from start to finish. Saanich and Victoria police will control traffic along the finishing portion of the route and, turning off the Trans-Canada Highway, riders will be directed to the left side of Douglas St. for a clear run to the finish line.

Chief referee Jim Davies of Vancouver, assisted by George Mortimer, Vancouver, and Alan Jones, Victoria, will watch riders in the Open event. Ken Magnall and Morris Neckwith, Vancouver, will act as referees for the novice race.

As bike stars continued to arrive today, Bob Tetzlaff, the California comet, was still considered the man to beat, although at least a dozen rivals are given a chance of whipping the Los Angeles ace.

The threat of rain has only added to difficulty of guessing who'll pop home in front Saturday morning.

SEE YOU HERE SATURDAY

The threesome will compete in the Open 100-mile event from Qualicum to Victoria.

Here's Where Victorians Can See Princess Close-Up

Victorians will have several opportunities to see Princess Margaret at close hand during her Centennial year visit to the capital next month.

Tentative plans for the Princess' itinerary here have now been completed, but still await the final seal of approval from London.

The Princess will fly to B.C. from London and her first public appearance is slated for Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. July 12, where she will be greeted by the Lieutenant-Governor and provincial dignitaries.

She will then drive to Victoria, through the heart of the city to the Empress Hotel which is to be the royal residence.

In the afternoon she will rest up from the long flight from England.

Sunday morning July 13, the Princess will attend services at Christ Church Cathedral. There are no formal ceremonies planned in the afternoon, but she may take a drive in the southern Vancouver Island area.

A heavy program is proposed for Monday, July 14.

Princess Margaret will first visit the City Hall for official greetings from the mayor and civic dignitaries.

From there she will go to the Legislative Buildings for a formal provincial welcome, and will make a speech from the steps of the buildings.

After a brief presentation ceremony at the buildings she will go to a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel to review a march past of troops.

Following a state luncheon in the hotel there will be a garden party at Government House grounds in the afternoon, according to present plans.

She will then drive to Victoria, through the heart of the city to the Empress Hotel which is to be the royal residence.

In the late afternoon she will visit the Royal Roads service college.

Victoria will say good-bye to the Princess on Wednesday, July 16, when she heads up-island for stops at Duncan, Nanaimo and a flight to the air force centre at Comox. She will then return to the mainland to begin a nine-day tour of provincial points, including the Peace River, Cariboo, Okanagan, Fraser Valley and Vancouver.

It would follow the Commonwealth Trade Conference in September, he said.

This conference, in Montreal, will open Sept. 15 and is expected to last 10 days to two weeks.

Mr. Martin asked whether a meeting earlier than September should be arranged in view of the Federation's concern about unemployment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no earlier date has been suggested.

The prime minister had declined in earlier Commons questioning to indicate the approximate date but today he told

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister: "It was concluded that the month of September or the period following would be a sufficiently early date to meet the requirements of the municipalities."

It would follow the Common-

ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle called today for an end to the power of the revolutionary public safety committees in Algeria.

In a clash with the military civilian junta which had taken over great power in this North African land, de Gaulle said: "Now we would run Algeria from Paris with Gen. Raoul Salan as his 'delegate general' here."

The move amounted to a showdown with the committee whose uprising against the Paris government on May 13 led to de Gaulle's return to power as premier of France.

"My primary mission is to assure the transition toward a reform of our institutions without civil war and breach of national unity," de Gaulle told a group of officials here on the third day of his fact-finding tour of Algeria. "I must insist on the absolute necessity to maintain this unity of the country."

He said he had "long been determined" to give the Moslems equal rights with European settlers in Algeria. He said the next elections here must be held under such a system of equality—a plan which still appears unacceptable to many members of the European minority.

HELL TAKE OVER

He asked all the assembled government delegates to be loyal Frenchmen, and announced that he will "assume along the task of Algerian affairs in the government" with Salan as his representative here.

There was no immediate reaction to de Gaulle's statement from members of the All-Algeria Public Safety Committee which only Tuesday announced that similar committees would shortly be established all over France, tipped by a "national" super-safety committee are intended to pay for all social services," he declared. "That means education, health, welfare, mental illnesses as well as hospital insurance."

"At no time was it ever said that the two-per-cent part of the five-per-cent tax was earmarked for hospitals alone," he declared.

In another part of his hour-long address, Mr. Martin said: "Although the government is responsible for the provision of the greatest portion of hospital funds, it has absolutely no say at all in the wage bargaining procedure."

"Bargaining is purely a matter between you and the employer," he said. "Between you and your employees, the hospital boards," he said.

To which Mr. Black later replied: "It may be true that the minister or his representative doesn't appear at the bargaining table, but you can be sure that his ghost does."

Emphasizing that governments are not "bottomless wells of money" but must operate within "a very carefully balanced budget" passed by the legislature, Mr. Martin said budgets for each hospital must be kept within the limits laid down.

"Because of this it is necessary for hospital boards, if they grant wage increases, to do so on their own responsibility," Mr. Martin continued. "If they go outside their approved budgets, then they must go outside their normal sources of revenue to get the funds with which to pay the increases."

"That doesn't mean that we won't meet the increases later on," he continued. "In due course I can catch up and that's what I've been doing. But I can't change my budget in the middle of the fiscal year nor can I tell you what will be in next year's budget before it's presented to the house."

"That would cost me my job and I'll be darned if I'll lose my job for you or anybody else. Of course the voters could see that I lose my job in two years but that's entering the realm of controversy."

The minister then quoted figures to show that far from their being a freeze on hospital costs or numbers of hospital staff, both were increased substantially each year.

Since 1952, he said, the government has increased payments to hospitals by 60 per cent "and yet these increased costs were not matched by increased taxation."

He said that in 1949 payments to hospitals were just over $16,500,000 and had increased to over $21,300,000 in 1952 and to an estimated $34,000,000 this year for an average yearly increase of $2,735,000. Increase in salary expenditures accounted for $2,160,000, or roughly 60 per cent.

IN PARLIAMENT

CCF Chief Asks Curb
On Interest Rates

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — The House has sidelined a private CCF bill designed to curb what its sponsor called "fantastic" interest rates charged by some loan companies and credit-financing firms.

House Leader Hazel Argue of the CCF called the rates a "blot on democracy" in introducing his measure Thursday to day-long debate.

The bill proposed a 12 per cent interest ceiling on all loans not specifically controlled by present laws. Debate was adjourned indefinitely after drawing Progressive Conservative reaction ranging from outright opposition to sympathy for the motive behind it.

Propose Alternative

The two Liberal speakers suggested it go to a parliamentary committee, a step proposed by Mr. Argue in the event the Commons did not wish to adopt the measure now.

Mr. Argue, member for Assiniboia, who has sponsored similar bills before, laced into what he called fabulously high interest rates where an annual rate of 20 per cent a year was "quite common" and some fixed by retail stores ran as high as 54 per cent.

His measure excluded bank rates and finance company loans up to $1,500 already covered by federal law.

He listed Simpson-Sears and Eaton's Limited as firms extending budget account and installment credit with interest running from 10 to a maximum 54 per cent annually on the smallest purchase.

Won't Limit Profits

Mr. Argue said his bill would not hamper operations in the loan field or limit profits.

Government speakers generally questioned whether the bill as worded would achieve its purpose, and expressed misgivings about the possibility of tampering with a source of consumer funds at a time when any slackening in purchases might increase unemployment.

Ernest Broome (PC-Vancouver South) called the bill premature in the light of the 1956 amendment to the Small Loans Act.

Gordon Chown (PC-Winnipeg South) saw it as an attempt to destroy a "healthy enterprise" filling a Canadian need. He doubted that interest rates generally were too high, taking into account operating costs and risk involved.

Mr. Argue interrupted to ask whether Mr. Chown was aware that finance company losses in 1956 amounted to about one-quarter of one per cent. There was no risk, he said.

The only unqualified support for Mr. Argue came from two colleagues, Erhart Régier (CCF-Burnaby-Coquitlam) and Murdo Martin (CCF-Timmins).

Mr. Régier said Thursday he believes United States Air Force bombers that fly over Canada as part of the U.S. "instant retaliation" defence policy are nuclear-equipped.

The CCF member asked Defence Minister Pearkes about the value to Canada—in the light of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's assurance to the Commons earlier this week that each flight by nuclear-equipped U.S. aircraft requires separate Canadian permission "of having 1,000 planes in the air at all times."

Mr. Pearkes replied he is "not prepared to accept the statement that there are any definite number" of aircraft in the air at a given time.

Mr. Régier then asked: "What is the purpose of having a constant number in the air if they are not equipped with the latest weapons?"

When the defence minister gave no reply, Mr. Régier said: "Obviously they are equipped."

Senator Ralph Horner said Thursday the principle of saving money to become wealthy is as out of date as the ox cart.

The Saskatchewan Conservative senator made the statement in the Senate throne speech debate in taking sharp issue with a speech Wednesday by Liberal Senator A. B. Baird of Newfoundland.

Senator Baird said Canadians are losing their ancestral trait of saving and living within their means.

The Two Rivers

ONE FACT IS CLEAR IN THE long Columbia River controversy and, so far, only one. When the river is harnessed, says Premier Bennett, its production of electrical power will be managed by a public authority, not by a private company. The authority, he expects, will represent both the national and provincial Governments.

This policy, we think, is wise. A natural resource as valuable as the Columbia (one of the greatest sources of power in the world) should be managed solely in the public interest.

Moreover, an authority directly representing the two Canadian Governments will be equipped better than any private company to deal with the international problems involved in the development and, later, the sale of Columbia power. Even Mr. Grauer, head of the B.C. Electric, which had hoped to develop the Columbia, agrees that in this particular case public is superior to private management.

But we are still a long way from any action on the Columbia; public or private. Mr. Bennett's recent announcements, indeed, must greatly complicate the whole problem.

He says the Wenner-Gren interests have discovered satisfactory dam sites and fully intend to dam the Peace River to produce between four and six million horsepower of electricity.

If he is right, the Peace will supply all the power that British Columbia can possibly use in the visible future. What, then, shall we do with the Columbia power? Should we even try to harness the Columbia, at gigantic cost, when there is no Canadian market available for its energy?

Mr. Bennett has a ready answer to this question—an old, familiar answer. He would sell most of the Columbia power to the United States and thus earn some large, easy revenues for his Government.

This plan, of course, directly contradicts the long-standing policy of successive Canadian Governments. They have always opposed any export of power on the ground that we shall ultimately need, within Canada, all the power we can produce.

Until now the Federal Government, in negotiating with the United States, had assumed that it was dealing only with the Columbia; that all the power produced directly by a Canadian dam would be used in Canada; and that Canada should also receive from the United States about half the extra power, or "downstream benefits," created in American plants by a Canadian dam.

All these assumptions will have to be revised if Mr. Bennett is right about the Peace River scheme. Canada's objective, in negotiating with the United States, will not be to secure a maximum share of Columbia power for Canadian use but to get the best price for its sale to the United States.

But until the Canadian Government knows for sure whether the Peace River project is going ahead or not it will be in no position to negotiate with the United States for a maximum share of Columbia power for Canadian use but to get the best price for its sale to the United States.

Do the Wenner-Gren interests actually intend to dam the Peace and when? That is the key question which must be answered before the Columbia problem can be settled or even seriously discussed with the United States.

Mr. Bennett does not know the answer to that question and may not know for some time.

While dam sites have been found on the Peace, there is no assurance yet that a dam will be built. Everything will depend upon the ability of the Wenner-Gren syndicate to finance one of the world's largest power projects and to sell its output profitably in British Columbia and partly, perhaps, in Alberta.

Mr. Bennett, as usual, is optimistic but he does not know what the syndicate intends to do. Probably the syndicate does not know itself.

Hence, despite all the high-sounding talk in Washington, Ottawa and Victoria, there is really no clear power policy on either of the great British Columbia rivers. There is only the assurance of a power famine a few years hence if a policy is not soon framed.

A Century of Devoted Service

IT IS HIGHLY APPROPRIATE, but not surprising, that the authorities should announce the success of Sister Mary Monica in second-year examinations in the College of Education during the week that St. Ann's formally celebrates its centenary here.

Sister Mary Monica led the class. In this she maintains a consistently high standard set by members of her order in educational training here during recent years.

When the Normal School introduced the practice of paying honor to top students some time ago, members of the same order dominated the group numerically.

Under these happy auspices the Sisters of St. Ann look back this week to the arrival in Victoria of four pioneer members of the order who founded a school in a log cabin 100 years ago.

Since that time this community has had numerous occasions on which to appreciate the work carried on by successors of the founders. Their abilities as teachers have been widely recognized. So too, have their innumerable services to ease the suffering, nurse the ill and improve the minds of those entrusted to their care.

This community is continuously in debt to those staunch souls, those able women whose dedication over the century has made Victoria a better place in which to live.

Safety on the Water

THE CLASSICAL REMEDY FOR sea-sickness is to lie down under the spreading branches of an old oak tree.

With his shoulders firmly pressed to the earth, the victim soon finds relief from the upset of a rolling sea.

During recent weeks a number of boat-owners in this community—people who have come recently to the water for weekend and picnic outings—have sensibly adopted a variation of that procedure to practise water safety.

When sudden squalls have blown up, they have sheltered on islands. They could have followed no wiser procedure. They cannot drown on land.

That is one axiom that should be understood by the growing number of Victorians who lack experience on local waters. It is only one. There are many other rules to follow. The rules have been outlined to youths in a water safety course recently completed under YMCA auspices here. The course will be repeated in the fall and, if the demand is sufficient, will be given again next spring.

Because the modern small boat and the modern outboard motor have become so popular, it becomes increasingly important to familiarize our people with the element on which such craft perform.

The enjoyment that can be derived from recreation afloat is almost limitless. It is, nevertheless, accompanied by certain unavoidable dangers. Those hazards should be thoroughly understood.

Instruction such as that given under YMCA auspices, and with the help of well-known boatmen, is a service which should receive widespread recognition.

From saving the fawns, those who carry them away are usually condemning them to death.

That Fawn Is Not Abandoned

A GAME WARDEN AT CAMPbell River has repeated earlier warnings to sympathetic humans to leave apparently abandoned fawns alone.

The little animals, he points out, may appear to be deserted by the roadside. That is seldom, if ever, the case. The mother deer is usually close by, hidden and waiting only until the human intruder leaves to reclaim her offspring.

The fact that it is an offence to "rescue" fawns may deter some people from picking them up. That practice will be further discouraged if they know that the small creatures seldom survive when parted too early from their mothers.

Far from saving the fawns, those who carry them away are usually condemning them to death.

FROM PARIS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

No Longer the Old Shoe

THE airplane for Algeria, advertised as at least equal to a flying camel in both speed and comfort, leaves in one hour's time. What will one find there—the signs of future defeat or the promise of eventual success for Gen. de Gaulle's great experiment?

There is no use trying to guess the answer to a question which events alone can answer in any case. But at this breathless moment, between the ending of the Paris crisis and the beginning of de Gaulle's vital Algeria venture, another point is perhaps worth noting. In this tense Paris crisis, one has also seen at least the beginning of the end of what may be called the postwar world.

The postwar world was chiefly characterized by the enormous number of highly provisional arrangements that were made in countries which had been deeply unsettled by the war. There were very few countries except the United States and the Soviet Union in which the war did not produce some sort of change of system.

In a great many countries the first attempts to cope with the change were not merely provisional. They were downright ramshackle. In this latter class, the most important country was the third Western ally, France. Maurice Couve de Murville, is a sufficient guarantee against such often-ruled adventures as unilateral negotiations with Moscow. And in any case, with only six months to negotiate an Algerian settlement and prepare a constitutional reform, Gen. de Gaulle will hardly have time to revolutionize the landscape in many other ways as well.

New Faces

This being said, however, it is also plain that the old shoe relationship between France and her allies has now come to an end. If Gen. de Gaulle fails, the ending may be very terrible indeed. For then the Western allies will have to deal with a France which is either Communist or Fascist. But even if Gen. de Gaulle succeeds in all that he is now attempting, the old familiar ways will surely chance and the old familiar faces will surely be replaced by new faces of quite a different sort.

In the former period, France was always being cossetted by her allies on the one hand, and always being taken for granted by her allies on the other hand. A France in which de Gaulle has succeeded will not demand much cossetting. That is all one can foretell. But even that is enough to provide the basis for another prophecy. The former shape, the former relationships, the former ideas and purposes of the Western Alliance are all due to be recast in the period that lies ahead.

Changes

In other countries besides France, notably in the Middle East, the provisional and ramshackle postwar arrangements are also breaking down. In these other countries, new arrangements, new systems are also emerging. And these new systems, while probably more stable, will almost certainly be less easy to live and work with than the old.

In sum, what lies ahead is an enormous effort of adjustment to a wholly transformed world situation—an effort which will require the utmost intellectual flexibility, the utmost in imagination, even the utmost in mere physical stick-to-itiveness among the Washington policy-makers. One cannot help but wonder whether the Washington of Eisenhower and Dulles is capable of such an effort.

But Who Pays?

Premier Bennett is quoted as saying the Social Credit government is always developing new power, creating new jobs and new industries.

He should go and watch the line-up at the unemployment offices every day.

He also says he would not use the people's money. He would use the credit of the province. I would ask who repays the government's borrowings? Certainly not the private utilities. He rebated $28 of our taxes in 1957 then allowed our assessments to double in 1958.

Let's get a clear perspective of legislation in favor of its backers. You can't divide public and private power without inefficiency and extra cost with all the favors going to the private concern.

If Social Credit wants to use the credit of the province, why not explore the possibilities of a bridge across to the mainland. Or is that too big for them?

tinual increases in their pay at least every six months. If that is going to happen there can be no knowing how much more the purchasing power of the dollar will sink.

One more thing that I find very exasperating is this: In many cases demands for more wages are in reality based not on dissatisfaction with the pay received but only on the belief that some other section of the community was getting more out of the public purse than they are demanding. Of course such a state of affairs would be intolerable and a strike becomes a necessity.

The difficulty, of course, is to find a remedy. If the old age pension were doubled it would help but even then the wage increases would have to stop as, of course, they should anyway.

This is 'Toadying'?

I noticed in your issue of last Friday, in your description of the rehearsal of the Color ceremony, you followed the style of spelling associated with the United States dialect, instead of the standard British spelling of the word "Colour." Then in your issue of last evening, in the description of the actual ceremony, you used the same spelling, in spite of the fact that the correct spelling must have been brought to the notice of your representative by the official pamphlet handed out at the ceremony, as is shown by the reference in your account to the little-known origin of the slow march which is a feature of "Trooping the Colour" (not colours nor colors). In describing an essentially British ceremonial, you might refrain for the moment from toading to the United States.

No Confidence

There appears to be no limit to the stupidity of the U.S. State Department and the Eisenhower administration. While Canadians will take no pleasure in the insults and mob violence suffered by Vice-President Nixon during his "good-will" tour of South America, we cannot fail to be amazed at the outrageous action of President Eisenhower in sending American troops to the Caribbean to "protect" Nixon. Such an action is hardly conducive to goodwill.

While we may admire Mr. Nixon's personal courage, we cannot admire either his judgment in continuing his tour, or the judgment of the administration which sent him. The childish attempt to brazen out these serious errors by giving Nixon a "hero's welcome" on his return will be treated with the worldwide contempt it deserves.

The incident is but one of many which show all too clearly that the White House has become an ivory tower in which a false idea of American prestige has been allowed to cloud both moral principle and commonsense. The present occupants live high above the sea of world opinion and are crudely contemptuous of its currents.

We in Canada have a Prime Minister who has requested our prayers for wisdom in government. These we should certainly give, together with all spiritual and moral support, in order that the voice of Canadian Christian sanity should be strengthened in a world situation in which even our friends seem to have taken leave of their senses. We must not be overawed by material wealth and power, or led into disastrous adventures thereby.

The handling of this matter is sufficient to destroy all confidence in the Eisenhower administration, and in fact to cast serious doubts upon its mental equilibrium.

This state of affairs has undoubtedly been reached as a result of what I think one is justified in calling the rapacity of the wage-earning public and the situation is getting continually worse. It would appear that most wage-earners think that there must and will be concernous.

The handling of this matter is sufficient to destroy all confidence in the Eisenhower administration, and in fact to cast serious doubts upon its mental equilibrium.

It is imperative that Canadians should give a loud and clear vote of "No Confidence" in such foolish and inept leadership, before the whole world is dragged into a disastrous and unnecessary war.

Passing of a Company Town

From The Powell River Digestor

THREE years ago the Powell River Company sold the townsite area, with more than 400 homes, to local residents.

And so, almost with a stroke of the pen, the townsite of Powell River—which had been started by the company in 1911 and maintained and extended for 44 years—passed out of existence as a "company town." It is now a unit in the wider and enlarged Corporation of the District of Powell River.

Gradually, over the whole extent of this continent, the "company towns" are disappearing in similar fashion and are being absorbed in the new municipalities, villages or districts.

In many people's minds, the word "company town" had a sinister connotation. This feeling was too often fostered by left-wing politicians and others with special axes to grind.

It is true that in certain localities and with certain companies some "company towns" are deserving of the opprobrium so often turned on them. There was something depressing about this type of town, hastily erected, ill-equipped, its houses constructed without design or relief and looking, for all the world, like a rigid row of Prussian jack-booted hussars on parade.

But the normal company town, built by progressive companies, has a definite and honored place in the history of our nation. Who else but a private company would invest in the hundreds of homes necessary for employees, equip them with modern conveniences, and rent them at figures below the usual town or rural dwelling?

Powell River was always considered a model town, as were scores of others erected all over this continent. And now that the company has yielded its interest in the townsite, and is administered by the municipality, residents nostalgic recollect the "good old days" when Powell River was company-owned.

They remember how their rents were among the lowest in the province;

how they didn't have

The Scent of Boyhood

THE smell of hot sun on asphalt drifts through my window and tugs loose the tie-strings on a bag of memories.

This is the smell we knew as kids, trudging in summer over the baking road to Chinese Point to shore-fish for tommy-cod. The heat warmed calloused feet, increasing the delight as we moved off pavement to scuff through the dust of a dirt road.

This is the smell we caught as, running from a quick plunge in the bay, we fought for space on iron water-meter covers in the sidewalk to heat our shivering bodies.

This is the smell we knew as we left the field where we played basketball, straggled along the road and down to the bay on our way to High Rock and the deep, green waters.

It is the scent of long-gone summers when golden afternoons were endless.

You can look across from the sandy beach and see High Rock today almost as it was when admission to the daily bonfire there marked a stage of growing up.

RITES OF BOYHOOD

Here the informal and changing rites of boyhood took place. Here a youngster was measured by what was taken to be courage and ability.

High Rock lifts a round shoulder above the deep water. Burned into its more shallowly-sloping side is the pit of many fires. The pit is greying now as weather steals the dark black of charcoal and smoke and no new flames leap again to lick the rock and color it.

But you had arrived when you were admitted to the circle there. You had earned your place in the pack more surely than Mogwai at Council Rock.

Your tests were simple. To be accepted you had to swim in deep water. You had to have the valor to take three running steps down the shoulder of the rock and launch yourself into a dive.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

Eventful Month

NEW YORK—May was a history-making month in world affairs. Here at the United Nations it began with the Russian charge that American bombers constituted a threat to world peace and the American "put up or shut up" answer. Specifically what the Americans proposed to put up was an international Arctic inspection system. Canada worked closely with the U.S. in the formulation of this proposal, which was dramatically supported, in an almost unprecedented intervention, by Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold who dared the wrath of Russia, in so doing.

Then in mid-month the world was shocked by the attack of French bombers on the Tunisian border village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef. This was a mere hint of what was soon to come, the putsch in North Africa, the death throes of the Fourth Republic and the accession of General de Gaulle to power.

Meanwhile, in the oil-rich, oil-inflammable Middle East, Lebanon charged the United Arab Republic with interference in her domestic affairs and brought her case before the Security Council.

Finally Tunisia, following a four-and-a-half hour attack by French bombers, appealed to the Security Council for aid.

It was a busy month in the Security Council and, in fact, it was the first time in several years that the Security Council has been "seized" of three separate issues in one month. A scholarly, urbane Canadian with a quick smile and a dry wit was the man at the vortex of these violent cross currents.

The man in the rip tide was Charles S. A.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Troubled by Gardening Terms?

With new readers, who are also new gardeners, arriving every week, the basic difficulty seems to be "what do you mean by annual, biennial and perennial?"

A good dictionary will define an annual plant as "a plant living only one year or one season." I suppose the difficulty is that an "annual flower show," for instance, is a show which occurs each year.

Examples of annual plants, sometimes referred to as bedding plants, are zinnia, stock, marigold, petunia, lobelia and larkspur.

Biennials are described as existing for two years. That is, the seed is sown in early summer, the plant grows through summer, fall, remains almost static during winter and flowers the following year.

Examples are wallflowers, forget-me-nots, Brompton stock, foxgloves, lunaria (honesty) and Canterbury bells. After flowering the plants die, and are discarded.

Biennials may be grown successfully only in regions such as Vancouver Island, and other coastal areas where winter temperatures are not consistently low and where the spring and early summer is cool.

Plants which live from year to year, or more than two years, in their case appear from the stems above ground, strictly speaking shrubs are perennials, too, but we speak of herbaceous perennials when referring to plants which flower in their season and die down to soil level in fall. Herbaceous in this sense means soft green stems which die over winter, followed by new stems in spring.

Examples of herbaceous perennials are lupin, border pinks or dianthus, peony, the perennial forms of aster and phlox, heliotrope and rudbeckia.

Roses, helianthemum (sun-rose) and many penstemons are by nature perennial, but they are known as shrubs, since their stems are woody and do not die down for winter. New

Canada Seen Big Tourist Draw in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The Daily Express predicts an extensive flow of British tourists to Canada in the future.

In an editorial headlined "Canada Calling," this widely-read London daily declares:

"This year as many as 2,000,000 people will cross the Channel to the Continent. Yet only a handful of tourists will cross the Atlantic."

"Next year all that may change. Already a tourist allowance of $100 in dollars has been introduced for North America."

"Now comes another welcome move. Canada suggests that British tourists should be allowed to pre-pay their hotel bills in sterling."

"Twenty years ago a holiday abroad was far beyond the reach of ordinary folk. Today it is commonplace. Tomorrow it may be Canada."

GREATEST LANDMARK

Brussels Atoms Tower Over All

By DON INGHAM, Times Staff Reporter

Every world's fair has a symbol. The first, in London in 1851, had its Crystal Palace. Most famous and longest lasting was, and is, the Eiffel Tower of the French International Exposition in Paris in 1889, and New York had its triron and perisphere in 1939-40.

The World Exposition at Brussels, or "Expo," has the Atomium, probably the most striking of the lot.

It is a model of the iron atom, fabricated in aluminum, that towers 102 metres, or about 111 yards above the fair site beside the royal domain in the Brussels, northern suburbs. It consists of nine hollow globes, each 18 metres

Ingham in diameter, and joined by polished tubes three metres in diameter. Some of these contain ordinary stairs, and some escalators.

On first glance there appears to be little order to the Atomium, but eventually it sorts itself out as two sets of four, placed to form a cube, with one in the middle. The whole works is perched on one corner, and propped up with girders that form stairways from the lower spheres to the ground.

All Lit Up

Seen from a distance, with the sun shining on the polished surface and nothing to destroy its symmetry, it is breath-taking enough, and dominates the land 'on miles around, let alone the fair itself. But at night it is even more spectacular.

Thousands of tiny lights stud its surface, and they blink on and off independently to give a shimmering effect to the whole fantastic structure. It is no wonder that visitors at night can hardly move without stumbling over tripods and camera flings.

It was built as a joint enterprise of five Belgian metal industries, and contains a restaurant and observation tower in the top globe, reached by Europe's fastest elevator (it has a window in the roof that lets one see how sickeningly fast and far up he goes on a wire cable); a sandwich bar, in one of the lower ones, and some of the most exciting displays in others.

Up the Spout

I spent 90 minutes in it, and marveled, but since the simple light switch has me baffled I can hardly explain nuclear power plants and atomic piles. Most exciting of all was getting on an escalator for a trip to a higher "electron," and knowing I was scooting along through space in a shiny metal tube. I know now how it feels to go up the spout.

I visited the Brussels Expo and the Atomium as a guest of Canadian Pacific Airlines, which had asked 80 travel agents and newsmen to fly to Europe and back aboard its new Bristol Britannia, "Empress of Buenos Aires".

This same flight will be part of the first prize offered in the Times Centennial bike race from Qualicum to Victoria. Saturday, since the prize is a trip to the world bike racing championship at Rheims, France.

The flight to Europe in 13½ hours will be exciting enough,

Duplessis' Ban on Licence 'More Effective' Than Trial

FRANK RONCARELLI
...he lost his business

OTTAWA (UPI)—The liquor licence of Jehovah's Witness Frank Roncarelli was cancelled because the move was "obviously" more effective than prosecuting him for sedition, a justice of the Supreme Court said today during the hearing of a $90,000 damage suit against Quebec Premier Maurice Duplessis.

The case will be wound up to cancellation and thus was not liable for damages.

Minister of the Crown, they argued, when acting in good faith and within his authority, cannot be sued personally.

Beaulieu has argued that Duplessis did not order the liquor permit to be cancelled in 1946, but only "approved" the decision already made by the Quebec Liquor Commission.

Justice Robert Taschereau made the comment in the course of defence counsel Emery Beaulieu's argument that Duplessis, as attorney-general, was within his rights in sanctioning the cancellation of former Montreal restaurateur Roncarelli's licence.

Beaulieu said Duplessis acted in good faith when he approved

A call for two official Canadian languages in "fact as well as law" was made Thursday by Mayor Armand L. McCrae, of Welland, Ont.

"The future of Canada is indeed very bright," Mayor McCrae said, "but we must maintain our shrines of tradition."

"We must somehow inculcate into our children," he said, "an awareness of their great heritage and how dearly it cost them."

PUNCTURES COULD WRECK CYCLISTS' HOPES

Bike Race Hopes Ride on Skimpy Strips of Rubber

By DOUG PEDEN

Durability of skimpy strips of rubber and fragile-looking pieces of tempered steel will decide the winner of the 100-mile open event of Saturday's Times Centennial Bicycle Race.

Weight, friction drag on the road and wind resistance are things that were taken down in long grinds.

The only way handlebar athletes can cut down wind resistance is to ride behind other riders as much as possible. But they can reduce friction drag and weight by the use of paperweight tires and ultra-light equipment.

Tires which make the biggest difference are a bike racer's most vulnerable piece of equipment.

The big problem for stars in Saturday's bike classic will be to choose the lightest possible tires that will last the distance. Most entrants will be using tubular tires of cotton or rayon with a thin strip of rubber cemented on the riding surface. They will inflate tires to between 150 and 180 pounds pressure.

Small stones, rubbing against another wheel and normal wear can result in punctures. Although most riders will carry a spare tire and will be allowed to obtain extra wheels from handlers following the race in cars, time lost in changing a tire could all but erase chances of being with the leaders in the home-stretch drive.

Weight of bikes is also kept to a minimum and most stars own chain-driven machines equipped with eight or 10-speed gears that add to speed in climbing or descending hills. Some of the racing machines wheeling down Vancouver Island Saturday will have cost their owners more than $500.

But to keep weight down, parts are machined to the point where sudden strains can snap working parts.

With the champion-studded field entered in Saturday's chase for a first prize to the world amateur cycling championships in France, any mishap will just about end hopes of finishing with the first batch of riders to hit finishing line on Douglas Street in front of The Times.

Target for most of the pedales will have to be Bob Tetzlaff, the California comet who has lost only one start this season.

But the blond bomber, who can do everything well on a bike, will have to guard against breakaways by rivals in the early part of the race and yet make sure that the pace is fast enough that sprint stars like Jim Davies of Vancouver are beaten before the dash to the wire.

Davies could take it all. The two-time Canadian sprint champion has concentrated on many races this spring and he's at his best should be able to stay with the endurance men.

All Southern California riders—Jerry Palmer, Jeff Robinson, Franz Bergammer and especially Tom Sparks—will be dangerous. They already have 15 races behind them this season and if the weather remains warm will be right at home in the sun.

Bob Best of San Francisco, who won his third straight Northern California road title this spring, may be finally ready to beat Tetzlaff, his perennial nemesis.

However, there are at least a dozen riders who have the ability to get home in front of Tetzlaff if the blond Los Angeles star fails to find his usual racing luck.

Among the best bets are Gary Lund, the Seattle hill-climbing ace; Mike Carr and Luigi Zanatta of Vancouver and Ian McMillan of Toronto.

close to four hours and fans who arrive late could miss the most exciting part of the classic.

Best parts of the course to watch the race should be at Nanaimo and Duncan, where the athletes will be racing for special prizes, on the uphill slope of the Malahat and, of course, along the home stretch.

Novice riders, starting from Duncan at 7:45 a.m., are expected to arrive about 30 minutes ahead of the open winner.

The tyro pedallers will be racing for a first prize of a trip to the 1958 baseball world series.

BELMONT FIELD SMALL

Tim Tam Aims For Big Triple

NEW YORK (AP)—Unless some surprise pops up, the names of seven three-year-old colts were to be dropped into the entry box today for the 90th running of the $100,000-added Belmont Stakes. Six of them are out to put the skids under Tim Tam's rush towards a Triple Crown.

Tim Tam, from the Calumet Farm of Mrs. Gene Markey, rules an odds-on choice to capture the 1½-mile Saturday. Others due to make the big try were Joseph E. O'Connell's Cavan, the Wheatsley stable's Nasco, C. V. Whitney's Flamingo, George E. Lewis' Martins Rulah, Mrs. Anna Cannuli's Chance It Tony and Mrs. Charles Silvers' Page Seven.

With seven starters, the Triple-Crown finale would have a gross value of $113,600, the winner netting $82,790.

If Tim Tam can get the job done, completing the Kentucky Derby-Preakness-Belmont triple and becoming the ninth horse in history to gain such honors, about 6 to 1.

Island Athletes Take Back Seat

Three of Vancouver Island's top high school track and field stars will strive for their best performances as finals are completed today in the B.C. High School Games, being held in connection with the Centennial Games in Vancouver.

Ann McKechnie of Oak Bay and Dee Mackie of Nanaimo race four other finalists in the senior girls' 100-yard dash, while Pete Byer of Alberni will be the Island's lone representative in the boys' open 220-yard dash.

MARKET SUMMARIES

INDUSTRIALS Pace Upswing at Toronto

Industrials led the Toronto stock market to higher ground today in moderate mid-afternoon trading. Industrials, with almost a point gain, established a 1958 high, surpassing one set earlier this week when they advanced briskly.

Ford B was the big winner adding five points on a single sale. Golds maintained their forward motion behind Keweenaw, ahead 4% at 18% and Hollinger up 22%.

The New York market turned mixed today, backing away from a move toward another high, for the year. American Motors and Studebaker Packard were in demand and fractionally higher.

AT TORONTO base metals were a little easier mainly due to a 1% loss at 10% by Steep Rock. Noranda retained its point gain at 42.

Western oils were generally ahead with the exception of Home Oil A and B. The B stock, an index issue, lost 1% at 18 while A was lower at 17%. Bailey Selburn, Calgary and Edmonton and Pacific Pete were fractional winners.

Dollar stocks were mainly lower. Bowater Paper Corporation and Anglo Newfoundland were firm.

South African gold shares were neglected and mainly easier.

AT VANCOUVER trading was brisk with prices improving during the forenoon. Royal Canadian Ventures sold 8,000 at 56. Peace River Pete moved 5,400 at 43. Base Metals traded 5,600 at 99. Craigmont moved 3,000 at $2.68.

Jobs Promised 'Whatever Cost'

PM Plans 'Comprehensive Action' Regardless of Deficit Budget

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker says the government plans to take "comprehensive action" regardless of deficits in the national budget."

CAR OUTPUT DECLINES 21%

OTTAWA (UPI) — Motor vehicle production in the first five months of the year totalled 177,688 units, down 21 per cent from last year's 224,327 units, the bureau of statistics said today.

In the month of May, production amounted to 41,448 units, a decrease of 15.5 per cent from 49,028 a year ago.

Passenger car production in the January-May period was down 10 per cent at 151,842 units. The May figure of 35,799 units was off 11 per cent from the 1957 level.

Anti-Combines Probe Clears Yeast Merger

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's anti-combines commission has found no major damage to the public interest from a 1955 merger in the yeast industry that reduced the number of competitors in the field to two from three.

But it said that Standard Brands Limited, the company that brought about the merger, should not be allowed to acquire its only remaining competitor.

The report of the restrictive trade practices commission was tabled in the Commons today by Justice Minister Fulton who said that in view of its findings no court proceedings will be taken.

The report grew out of an inquiry by combined investigator T. D. MacDonald after Standard Brands—the dominant firm in the yeast industry—had acquired Best Yeast Limited, a Nova Scotia firm. The only other Canadian producer is Fred E. Lallemand and Company Limited.

Price of Suit Going Up $1 If Tariff Boost Approved

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Canadians will pay more for their suits and overcoats—about $1 per suit and $1.50 per heavy overcoat—if the federal government decides to accept the recommendations of the tariff board, tabled Thursday in the Commons.

The board in its report on wool fabrics has recommended moderate increases in the Canadian tariff against British wools which would mean slightly higher prices.

The recommendation puts the government in an awkward spot at a time when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker has been strongly advocating increased trade with the British. At the same time the Conservatives have been favoring higher tariffs to protect the Canadian industry.

But it is regarded here as extremely unlikely that there will be any such higher tariff provision in the new budget, expected to be brought down June 17. Such a move towards higher tariffs against British wools likely would not be taken by the government at this time just before the British Commonwealth Economic and Trade Conference is due to open in Montreal in September.

The British are not expected to react very strongly against the recommendations. They are not nearly as severe as they had feared. However, it will be a different story for the Canadian manufacturers.

Loud complaints are expected to go to the government.

U.S. Coal Men Demand Oil Import Curbs

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Coal Association has called on the United States Congress to immediately restrict imports of foreign crude oil, residual oil and oil products. The association said imports of foreign oil "continue to be a serious threat to the coal industry" and thereby threaten American security.

The adverse currents affecting Canadian business now are predominantly international in character. Of great importance is the fact that the United States now is in the throes of the sharpest economic setback of the post-war period.

"Canadian businessmen, as well as the nation's political leaders, need an Elizabethan sense of grand design—the vision and faith on which the future of nations and fruitful enterprise is built," he said.

He challenged industry to "keep the economy open, competitive and dynamic."

He said this could be accomplished by a tight curb on prices to seek profits from large volume rather than high prices, and a free rein for imagination and initiative.

"I would not urge you to build new plants before they are needed, but would go further than that," he said. "I would urge you to create whole new industries to produce things we have never seen before."

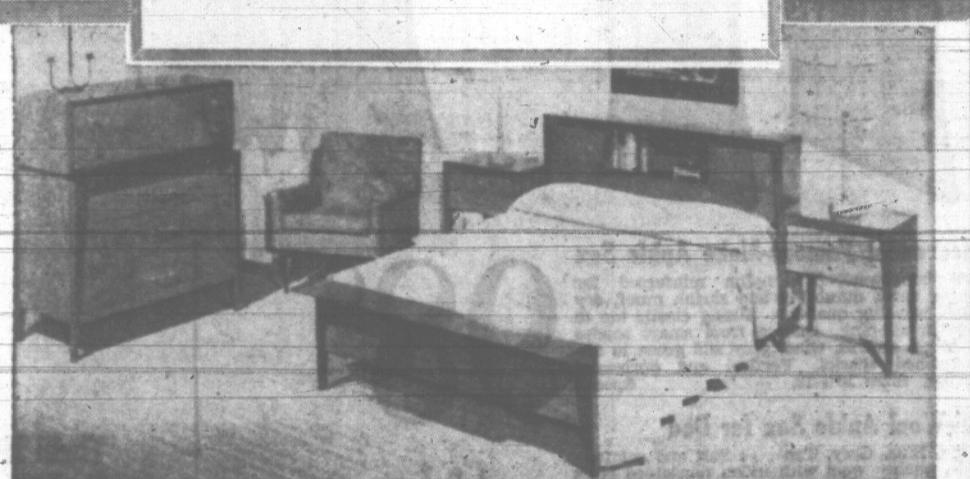

However, the economy "shows every evidence of coming through the present period of difficulty with comparatively little dislocation," he said.

Three 'Government Houses' Buffed for Visit of Princess

By ELIZABETH FORBES
Times Women's Editor

Government House will be established in three different parts of B.C. during Princess Margaret's visit in July.

Official residence of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross was burned to the ground in April last year. It is rising—Phoenix-like—from the ashes but will not be ready for occupancy for many months.

Since the fire, the lieutenant-governor's residence has been maintained in a wing of the Empress Hotel. It is in this suite of rooms that Princess Margaret will reside while she is in Victoria.

For the days Her Royal Highness is on the lower mainland, Government House will be in the gracious private home of Lieutenant-Governor Ross at Point Grey.

The establishment will be moved to a private home in Kelowna for the days the princess is in the Okanagan Valley.

It looks simple as written.

But the planning and the organization entailed to ensure efficiency of operation when the time comes for the moves in residence add up to months of work.

The wife of the lieutenant-governor, Mrs. Frank MacKenzie Ross, has had much to do with the organizing and planning.

Mrs. Ross Well Trained for Task

For months her desks in the Empress Hotel and in her Vancouver home have been covered with plans of rooms to be used in the three official residences; lists of things to be included in those rooms; tentative menus for the princess and her retinue; the proposed itinerary for the visit; and inventories of cutlery, china and glassware available in the Government House storage rooms.

Consultations have taken place with government officials, hotel management and her own staff servants to ensure that everything is ready.

Phyllis Ross is well-trained for the tremendous challenge of being hostess to royalty and moving her home three times during the course of the visit.

She organized and headed a department of government under the War Finance and Trade Board during the Second World War, and also was financial adviser in a Canadian government office at Washington, D.C.

For months now she has been calmly and quietly going

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about bicycles, and bicycle racing, and ESPECIALLY 100-mile bicycle racing.

Under the circumstances, which must be obvious to one and all; it seems advisable that I tell all I know about bicycles, and bicycle racing, and ESPECIALLY 100-mile bicycle racing.

Fortunately, I do not know very much about any of these topics.

However, I do know bicycles customarily have two wheels.

If they had three wheels, they would be tricycles, and consequently (a) easier to spell and (b) harder to fall off of.

As for (a), it is all too easy to spell bicycle, but whoever heard of spelling tricycle-tricycle? And if you don't think it is easier to misspell bicycle than it is to misspell tricycle, I have the marks on a 1918 report card to prove it.

(Come to think of it, it is pretty easy to misspell misspell too. See above.)

As for (b), it is indeed harder to fall off a tricycle than a bicycle, but I have accomplished both, as what red-blooded Canadian boy hasn't?

Getting back to (a), it is a lucky thing we are living in the 20th century. In earlier times, bicycle was spelt velocipede, celerifice, velocifere, accelerator, celeripide, draisine, pedestrian curriole, and, for all I know, cyclop.

This just goes to prove how hard a time the pioneer spellers had.

The main thing to remember about bicycles is, it is a two-wheeled vehicle propelled by the feet.

Fortunately, it is no great feat to spell feet.

As for bicycle racing, I have no doubt this is a very fine thing.

As for 100-mile bicycle racing, especially in centennial year, and ESPECIALLY sponsored by the Times on Saturday, June 7, I have no doubt WHATSOEVER that this is a SPLENDID thing.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland will speak on "The Century We Celebrate" at the 33rd annual convention of the Pacific Northwest Launderers and Dry Cleaners Association in the Empress Hotel Saturday at noon.

Kenneth Lowndes said the rink was already planned, along with development of an exhibition ground and race track in Colwood on national defence property.

Continuing his series of recitals, Christ Church Cathedral organist Graham Stell will present another hour-long program in the cathedral, Saturday, at 4 p.m.

He will play Bach's Prelude and Fugue in D Major; Franck's Choral and A Minor, and Elgar's Sonata in G.

Brian John Willson, 67 Wellington, was fined $25 in Central Saanich police court Thursday for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Saanich council Thursday promised Prospect Lake residents to take swift action to curb night-time beer drinking parties on public accesses to the lake.

Residents complained that people were littering public accesses with beer bottles and generally made a nuisance of themselves in the area.

About 200 militia members from three Mainland units will arrive in Victoria Saturday to start a week's training with anti-aircraft guns at Albert Head.

Participating will be the Irish Fusiliers, Vancouver; the 43rd Medium Anti-Aircraft Regiment, Vancouver, and the 24th Medium Anti-Aircraft Regiment, Trail.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: Anthony Vincent Madson, RCN, $25 for driving without a driver's licence; $20 for speeding over 30 miles an hour.

Martha F. Porter, 3012 Quadra, $25 for driving without a driver's licence; $10 for making an illegal U-turn.

The financial statement showed a good balance remaining after the purchase of new play equipment.

about the task of trying to visualize every eventuality as it concerns the routine of Government House during the royal visit.

A start was made on decorating the Government House suite in the Empress Hotel last autumn with Mrs. Ross and C. C. Chapman, hotel manager, working together on plans.

Entrance to the suite is through a small hallway with dark panelled walls and arched cream ceiling. A round oak table holds a huge copper bowl that will be filled with colorful flowers from the Government House grounds.

In another corner on a smaller table is a bronze horse, perfectly cast. The horse stood in the hallway at the former Government House. It was recovered after the fire, cleaned and restored.

The drawing room continues the oak-panelled walls and high cream ceiling.

A gold-toned carpet covers the floor, the same tone picked up in velvet cushions on the comfortable chesterfield.

Chairs are covered in English floral chintz in tones of rose, green and gold. Rose drapes are at the windows. There is a television set and a radio set in the room; a fireplace with electric coils.

Enlarged signed pictures of the Queen, Duke of Edinburgh and the Princess Royal and steel engravings of the Queen Mother and the late King George VI are on the walls.

There is a writing desk in one corner where Princess Margaret will find colored postcards and illustrated booklets of British Columbia for mailing overseas. Mrs. Ross will have these postcards and booklets in all rooms used by the royal retinue—as she did when the Queen Mother visited the province last January.

At that time Mrs. Ross said: "Nothing pleased the Queen Mother more. She sent them off immediately to relatives and friends overseas."

Chairs and tables in the dining room with matching buffet and side tables are of antique hand-carved oak. Graceful Georgian candelabra and an ancient ironware compote, with a mammoth Sevres ornamental clock and two huge Sevres floor vases, all brought by Mrs. Ross from Scotland for the new Government House, are main decorations.

Crimson rose velour drapes match the upholstery of the chairs. A life-size painting of the Queen is hung on the main wall.

Crewel work curtains of heavy English linen in rose, gold and with touches of blue, hang in the bedroom the princess will occupy.

Boudoir chairs are covered in complimenting chintz that picks up the golden tones of the carpet. Rose coverlets with threads of gold are on the beds.

Of this room is a bedroom for a lady-in-waiting. A lady-in-waiting will also sleep in a bedroom off the dining room. Others in the royal party will be in rooms on the same floor.

Before Princess Margaret arrives, flowers from the Government House greenhouses will be placed in all the rooms, under personal supervision of Mrs. Ross. Cream glass curtains will have been added at the windows and matching cream parchment and silk shades will be placed on the lamps.

Treasured ornaments from the Ross home, in Vancouver will add to the charm and beauty of the rooms.

Split-Second Timing Necessary

When Government House moves to the Ross home in Vancouver, split-second timing will be necessary. Staff servants must be sent on ahead. Mrs. Ross must be there to welcome the royal visitor when she arrives.

Princess Margaret will occupy the same suite of rooms that the Queen Mother used. Appointments will be the same.

Head dresser and ladies-in-waiting to the princess will be in rooms close to her suite and her private secretary—a man—will have rooms on the same floor.

Whether permitting, it is expected the princess and her retinue will spend much of the free time they have in the garden at the Ross home, high above the sea and with the snow-capped mountains in the foreground.

It has been arranged that a large private home in Kelowna, owned by Bruce Smith, will be maintained as Government House for the royal visit to the interior.

Here again, staff servants must be sent on ahead and be ready and waiting when the princess arrives.

Victoria Daily Times

15-Mile Front Established Strategic Bridges Captured 'Satisfactory'—Churchill Airborne Troops

HEADLINES IN THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES of June 6, 1944, marked D-Day, when Allied forces invaded Normandy. On this date Prime Minister Churchill said from London the invasion was "proceeding according to plan." From Ottawa, Prime Minister King said other offensives were expected to follow. King George called for prayers for Europe's liberation, and in Victoria, prayers were said on city streets for loved ones in the engagement.

BUT BLAZE OF GLORY HASN'T VANISHED

'Just Another Day to Me'

By TONY DICKASON

Today's young soldiers have heard of D-Day—they'll admit that—but the memories which haunt their elder brothers or fathers don't exist.

It was today, June 6, 14 years ago that the Allies began pouring themselves onto the beaches of Normandy to establish a long-awaited second front. Among these troops were the 1st Battalion, Canadian Scottish Regiment, perpetuated here by the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), now a militia group.

A permanent force soldier here, now aged 25, with the militia from 1951 until joining the regulars three years ago was frank.

"I don't remember anything about D-Day. I was told later. The story comes back to me as it is repeated. It's old stuff to us, old hat."

And another: "I'm 20 now. I heard about D-Day when I was 12. No, I don't know the details, exactly. June 6 is just another day to me."

There can be no real memory of that day, when one is young, even though a soldier now.

But the fantastic enterprise won 17 battle honors for the Canadian Scottish Regiment, covering the invasion and the liberation of Europe.

Today's young soldiers have heard of D-Day—they'll admit that—but the memories which haunt their elder brothers or fathers don't exist.

Prejudices had arisen, he said because Britain's colonial record "is too little-known and too little-understood."

He continued: "Look where you will in these colonies, you will find that the British have put a stop to savage customs, opened churches, schools and hospitals, built railways, roads and harbors, and developed the natural resources so as to mitigate almost universal desperate poverty."

These changes, he said, "are revolutionary," and without example in history. And the move to self-government has strengthened rather than weakened the Commonwealth.

MALAYAN EXAMPLE

By way of example he mentioned Malaya which, since gaining independence, has reached a level of social services "higher than exists anywhere else in Southeast Asia."

In Malaya one sees the fulfillment of Britain's policy of guiding and assisting these nations towards democratic self-government.

Mr. Ash is leaving Victoria for business reasons. He will live in San Diego, Calif.

At the same time Coun.

George Chatterton resigned as a member of the council so that he can seek election to the reeve's position.

Council Monday will set the date for the by-election to be held next month.

ANNOUNCER

Mr. Smith was well-known as the chief announcer for Highland games in years past, both here and in Seattle, and was active in Christmas hamper fund activities.

He was a member of Henderson Lodge No. 84, A.F. & A.M. and a past district deputy grandmaster for District No. 1; a member of the Scottish site and an honorary member of Nanaimo Lodge No. 110.

Surviving is one son, William, in Vancouver.

Interment will be in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Saanich Asks October Vote On Sewer Plan

Saanich public works committee will recommend to council Monday that it submit to ratepayers in October a $1,000,000 money bylaw for the construction of a new sewerage project in the Cadboro Bay and Shelly-Ruby Road areas.

The system would serve a population of 3,870.

The committee at a meeting Thursday felt that the proposed project should be timed with the completion of the present sewer program this fall.

The program is well ahead of schedule and is expected to be finished by the end of September or in October.

A second dinner will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday for "Battle Officers" in the Bay Street Armories regimental mess. About 50 officers are expected to attend.

And despite the new generation the blaze of glory has not vanished: there are no grey mists of time.

FIRER

Coun. George Chatterton said it would be fairer to ask only ratepayers in the new district to vote.

"They will be the only ones paying for it," he said.

The proposed Cadboro Bay sewerage area includes all the height of land passing through Gordon Head Army Camp. The northwesterly boundary extends north of Locarno Lane.

Lochhaven and Queenswood subdivisions, together with Ten-Mile Point have been omitted from the proposed sewerage area because of the abundance of rocky outcrops.

SAANICH REEVE ASH FORMALLY RESIGNS

Reeve Arthur Ash submitted his resignation as head of Saanich municipality at a special council meeting Thursday.

Mr. Ash is leaving Victoria for business reasons. He will live in San Diego, Calif.

He built the Smith Block here, later sold, adjacent to the present Woodward's store.

DEFINITE ANSWER

The brief concluded:

"The association deeply regrets that the government does not seem to be prepared to act except when an emergency is created. We feel that the forbearance shown by the association . . . with the government's failure to implement the understandings of last July, along with our extreme patience in awaiting commencement of hearings on extension of bargaining rights to provincial workers. The hearings are slated to be held in Vancouver, before government-appointed mediator, Prof. A. C. Carrothers of UBC.

SOME EXCLUDED

A. C. Bennett, assistant general secretary of the association, outlined the points disputed.

He said pay increases promised last July when settlement of the pay scale was reached.

"They will be the only ones paying for it," he said.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Now! During Hot Spell—
Eat Light, Fresh Foods!

By PENNY SAVER

When the weather is so warm, I don't feel much like eating . . . do you? A lightly tossed salad or a wee dish of fresh fruit are just about all I need to keep me going! Seems to me, this is a chance for the heavier foods.

Low calorie type in foods are salads made of fresh green romaine. Tossed with a few crisp radishes and tangy green onions, here's a mixture that's as delicious as can be! Romaine is 5 cents a bunch, radishes and onions two large bunches for 15 cents.

Watercress is another low calorie, nutritious leafy vegetable. Crisp, freshly picked watercress tops my list for being palatable and interesting! It tastes slightly mustardy and pep up any meal, alone or with other salad greens.

Try it sometime. See how 10 cents of watercress is worth a trip to the store to purchase it!

Plums, plums and more plums! They've arrived, so hop on foot, bicycle or in a car to get a pound or so of this tantalizing juicy fruit at 27 cents.

At 47 cents a pound freshly picked apricots are here . . . so be the first to serve apricots and cream at your weekend dinner table . . . (you dieters, don't eat too many!)

Eat lightly but brightly this weekend, and phone me at 2-3131. I'll tell you where I shopped!

PS — Tomatoes are going down in price . . . they're now two pounds for 29 cents . . . now can you beat that?

Couple Wed
Up-Island

St. George's United Church, at Courtenay, was setting for a wedding recently when Edna Joyce Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Bailey of Courtenay, became the bride of Norman Victor Nunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Nunn of Royal Oak.

Rev. J. Goldie, RCAF, conducted the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of white satin. Over skirt of the dress was inset with tulle and lace and the bodice was topped with a lace bolero trimmed with sequins at the shoulders. Her veil was from a tiara of sequins. She wore a strand of pearls; gift of the groom. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Similar gowns in pink and blue were worn by bridal attendants Miss Diane Ellis and Miss Carroll Bailey. They carried bouquets of pink and blue carnations respectively. Janet and Sandra Bailey, flower girls, wore dainty frocks in pink and blue. They carried Colonial bouquets of carnations.

Best man was Ken McLean and ushering were Roy Rooto and James Collie. Groomsman was Gary Mitchell.

During signing of the register, Miss Judy Park sang "Lord's Prayer" and "O Promise Me."

Strawberry-decorated Pendray Hall for the supper reception. A three-tier cake centred the bridal table.

J. H. Nunn, Sidney, proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon in the interior of the province, the new Mrs. Nunn wore a beige flecked suit. Her shoes and purse were in brown tones and her accessories, in coral. She had a yellow rose corsage.

The couple will live in Vancouver.

Birthday Party

Mrs. J. Boorman presided at the annual birthday party of the Afternoon Auxiliary, Metropolitan United Church Woman's Missionary Society.

Mrs. Keith Henderson and Mrs. G. L. Gillard arranged entertainment which included a sing-song, and jumbled word contest, won by Miss G. Bedford and Mrs. E. Hawthorne. Mrs. J. D. Wilson gave two recitations.

Tea table was centred with a group of dolls dressed in styles from 1858 to 1958 in floral surroundings. Decorated birthday cakes were cut and served.

Each person was presented with a rose.

Decorations in Pendray Hall were carried out in the centenary theme.

Miss Bedford and Miss E. Beal were in charge of tea; Mrs. C. F. Wharton and Miss E. E. Harte, invitations, and Mrs. E. R. Bewell and Miss E. Wheatley, flowers.

WOMEN MUST HELP

Canada's Future in Balance;
Solved by 'Ordinary People'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Council of Women opened its 65th annual convention here Thursday night with an appeal from Progressive Conservative MP Margaret Aitken to help direct the future of Canada.

Miss Aitken, representing Prime Minister Diefenbaker, told the 300 delegates that the nation has been going through a period of self-examination and "now is the time for us to decide what we want to be and where we want to go."

She stressed the problems of immigration and development of the north as two of the most important and told the delegates, who represent women's groups across Canada, that in the long run these problems will have to be solved by "ordinary people and organizations such as yours."

This organization protested the Succession Duties Act at many times . . . women's organizations can correct these injustices."

Makes $300—The Cariboo cofee party held by friends of the diocese in Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall recently, realized a sum of $300. This is to go towards the erecting of a church hall in Lytton, B.C. Christ Church Women's Auxiliary assisted in arranging the affair.

Referring to the immigration problem, Miss Aitken said most Canadians are agreed on "the unassailable fact that we need more people in Canada to achieve prosperity and growth" but that there is considerable disagreement on the method and timing of immigration.

"Our struggle for the rest of the 20th century will be against our own physical conditions, not against other lands," she said. "But we must exercise tremendous care and caution in keeping peace."

SHOULD BE SELECTIVE

She said Canada should be selective in regard to health standards, job availability, age and its own security.

Speaking of northern development, Miss Aitken said:

"I believe that the pioneering young people of this country will go in and develop the north . . . this would also be a major step towards solving the immigration problem."

Miss Aitken referred to the replacement in the current session of Parliament of the Succession Duties Act by a new bill which increases widows' exemptions, as an example of an injustice which women had fought to eliminate.

She said the organization protested the Succession Duties Act at many times . . . women's organizations can correct these injustices."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Girl, 17, Says: 'I'm Still
As Flat as I Was at 12'

Q. "I am 17 years old and as of now I have no bust. The rest of me is just fine and I have developed everywhere perfectly except for my bustline. I am still as flat as I was at 12. It is very embarrassing because I am a tall girl and feel that I look like a freak. I am afraid to go to a doctor for fear he will tell me that I am abnormal."

"Could you please tell me if there is anything wrong with me and why I have not developed? I am about 5 feet, 3 1/2 inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. My waist is 25 inches, and hips 36 inches. Please help me. I am almost frantic! I am ashamed and self-conscious."

A. You are developing later than usual but the fact that your bust has not developed by the age of 17 does not necessarily mean that you will not have one. However, if you would like to see a physician, visit an endocrinologist. There is nothing abnormal about your condition."

If you have a small frame your weight is just about correct. If you are medium or large in build you are underweight. A gain might help the bustline also.

Q. "When is one too old to take up sports?"

A. It depends on the sport. Men and women with no abnormal condition can learn to swim at practically any age. This is a wonderful middle-aged sport to adopt. You also can play golf from middle age on. Ping pong and croquet usually can be indulged in with safety. Tennis and badminton are considered too strenuous at middle age unless you have kept in training all through the years. Many folks past early youth enjoy sailing and canoeing. Always get your physician's advice before beginning some new sport or physical exercise.

Q. "I have been asking for hair wax and no druggists or anyone seems to have it. Am I calling it by the right name? I want the wax to remove hair from my face."

A. It is called cosmetic wax. However, it seems to me that they could have guessed what you wanted even if you did not explain.

Housewife Says*'Undersell—For Success'

MONTREAL (CP) — A housewife Thursday told Canada's industrial leaders that business may have reached the moment when "underselling" may be the better part of wisdom.

"For successful selling has a reverse side and the naked truth might be quite exciting after the fancy clothes it has worn so long," said Mrs. H. E. Vautelet, immediate past president of the Canadian Association of Consumers. She was addressing the public relations conference during the annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

She said the country may be entering a new economic pattern characterized by "a vocal consumer consciousness." This would create headaches for those who sell, but would also open new avenues of communication.

"Selling at all costs by all means is a dangerous narrowing of your sights that tends to reduce consumers in your eyes to the status of sheep to be herded, but not necessarily served."

Mrs. Vautelet said high fashions, over-fancy packaging and streamlined household tools that sell looks, not convenience, are some examples that sell the company short. She added Canadians are just emerging from a buying-spree "made up in equal parts of consumer and producer gluttony."

"This buying-spree soared on the potent fuel of advertising and promotion—in other words consumer temptation brought to a fine art. Its inevitable result is consumer resentment for having let ourselves be over-sold."

She added the resentment is still mostly subconscious, but described it as "a sort of banana peel lying across the path of selling the company to the consumer."

"You step on it when you stress selling to us rather than serving us."

Use Plentiful Veal In Delicious Meat Loaves

Reports from the marketing service of the Canada Department of Agriculture indicate that veal is the best buy in meat for June. If you are not accustomed to cooking this Worcestershire sauce, chopped delicately flavored meat, you, onion, parsley, celery and sage will be glad to know that specific instructions may be found in the consumer section book, "Meat, How to Buy—How to Cook," available at 50 cents per copy from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa.

Among the many suggestions and recipes for using various cuts of veal included in the meat book, are veal birds, veal paprika, braised veal and Jellied veal and pork loaf ideal for summer salad plates. Since veal has very little fat it is sometimes combined with fatter meats as in these two recipes for meat loaf.

'CENTURAMA' HAS ITS MOMENTS—AND LOVABLE POOCH

Perky Finish After Slow Start

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

British Columbia's history in song, dance and story was unfolded before an enthusiastic first-night audience at the Memorial Arena Thursday night.

The long-awaited B.C. Centurama got off to a slow, uncertain start, but as the programs gained pace, the scope and variety of entertainment presented and the brilliance of many of the performers satisfied all tastes.

It ranged all the way from Centennial songs composed by Al and Betty Morrison to a spectacular log-rolling display by Bill Fontana and Sam Solary from Ontario, and an enthralling trapeze act by the Flying Wendts from Florida.

FEARLESS

Outstanding was a daring and beautiful presentation of an Indian goddess, twirling and twisting in an artificial crescent moon, high about the audience, by Kitten Wendt. The combination of grace and fearlessness and the ingenuity of the setting won applause from every corner of the arena.

Then there was Peppy, the log-rolling pooch. What a show he put on, with his four legs twinkling over the revolving log! And when he balanced precariously on a chair that was poised precariously on the same log it seemed as if his audaciousness would go wild with delight.

Adding to the fun was "Little Porky," a nondescript white dog said to be making his first appearance in public. Porky, too, was a master of log-rolling but didn't seem to know it, for his tail drooped after each performance.

Orwin Harvey of Los Angeles contributed to the comedy side of the program with a hilarious display of diving in top hat and striped underwear.

Outstanding among the vocalists was Bruce Yarnell of Vancouver who also acted as master of ceremonies and was heard to advantage in songs of the gay twenties with Rose Mary Adams and Margaret Sampson.

Peggy Carl of Victoria was featured among the Centurama Dancers in an 1858 Western Jamboree and the Barkerville Belles of 1880.

TRICKY ROUTINE

Miss Carl also was seen in a tricky dance routine with Doreen La Riviere of Prince George.

From Hardy Pearson, a native of Denmark now living in Vancouver, first-nighters heard the first performance of a B.C. Centennial Prayer composed by Al Morrison. And the Centurama chorus offered a lively rendering of "We're Lucky to be in B.C."—the work of Al and Betty Morrison.

Miss Donna MacKay of Vancouver was featured in a succession of Scottish dances by the Centurama Dancers, also seen in an Indian war dance.

The program was rounded out with a riotous display of canoe tilting and a comedy sequence by Morrison and Reeves.

The B.C. Centurama Orchestra, conducted by Lloyd Or-

Special Tie Designed For Governors-General

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—At long last the Union of Canadian Governors-General now has an emblem—a tie designed by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, present governor-general.

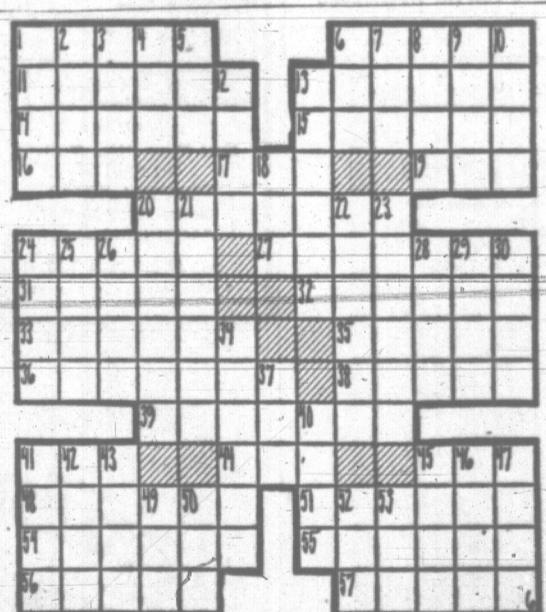

The tie design has been approved by Queen Elizabeth.

Made in England the tie is intended for use by the present and past governors-general, and by members of their personal staffs such as secretaries, comptrollers of the household and aides-de-camp.

Made of dark blue silk, the tie has a pattern of tiny gilt maple leaves superimposed by a crown. It was conceived by Mr. Massey nearly three years ago.

He personally presented it to his predecessor, Viscount Alexander and also to former Governors-General the Earl of Bessborough and the Earl of Athlone.

Among those who can wear the tie is Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who was an ADC to the Duke of Devonshire when he was governor-general in Canada.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

'Come-See-Us' Drive Planned by Cavalcaders

A cavalcade of 40 or 50 cars from Victoria soon will be wending its way, follow-the-leader style, through the Hood Canal region of Washington.

Its purpose will be to let travel agents, motels and hotels know Vancouver Island is not cut off from the mainland.

Other cars will prowl deeper in the state.

SEND LETTERS

The motorcades are part of an ambitious plan spawned by a committee of Victoria businessmen formed Thursday.

The group, headed by Michael Harris, president of the Motel Owners' Association in Victoria, will also send letters in "come-and-see-us" vein to persons likely to meet tourists interested in visiting Vancouver Island.

Radio and television advertising is also being considered.

Mr. Harris said persons in the Hood Canal area were "not well versed" with the ferry situation here, "and we want to let them know we are still in the tourist business."

PUBLICITY BLAMED

Telegrams stressing that Vancouver Island has not been isolated by the CPR strike have already been sent to 250 automobile clubs both by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the publicity bureau.

But "unfavorable publicity," not the strike, has been blamed for part of the dearth of American tourists on the Island.

Public relations official Charley White said on return from a recent trip in the northwestern states that many below the border picture Vancouver Island isolated and "practically starving to death."

He urged the chamber and publicity bureau to emphasize the positive side, that two island-mainland ferries are still in service.

Mr. White's remarks brought the reply from chamber president Hugh Stephen that steps had been taken to counteract the false "isolation" rumors.

B.C. Accountants To Meet June 12

Fifty-second annual meeting of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia will be held at the Empress Hotel June 12 and 13.

Chief speakers will be Prof. L. G. Wong, associate professor of the faculty of commerce at University of British Columbia and Brenton S. Brown, president of Parsons Brown Ltd., immediate past president of Vancouver Board of Trade.

Institute fellowships will be presented at a luncheon June 13.

RUSSIA AGREES TO SWAP 20 STUDENTS WITH U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Russia, which recently expelled a U.S. diplomat for being too friendly with Soviet students, has agreed to let 20 young Americans enroll in Moscow and Leningrad universities next fall. At the same time 20 Soviet students will start classes at colleges and universities in the United States.

SHORTEST ROUTE OUTLINED

'Tell-All' Alarms For Duncan Fireman

DUNCAN—An electrically operated alarm board has been installed in the fire hall here that shows not only the location of a fire but the shortest route from the fire hall to the blaze.

It consists of a table with 140 switches opposite names of streets and numbered blocks, and a map of the city on the wall above.

In practice, the first fireman to receive a call closes the switch beside the street and block reporting the fire, which lights a bulb on the map at the source of the alarm. Best route to the scene also is marked.

It is especially useful for a volunteer department, such as that in service here, since firemen reporting for duty after apparatus has left can tell instantly from the board where they must go. Until now they had to check with the telephone exchange.

The board was suggested by Fire Chief George Sanderson, and was built on a volunteer basis by Vern Jones, a member of the department. It contains about 750 feet of wiring.

Bicycle Kings Set for Times Classic Saturday

Today is "Butterfly" day for entrants in Saturday's Times Centennial Bicycle Race.

Training is over and riders in both the Novice event from Duncan to Victoria and the 100-mile Open chase from Qualicum will be plagued with fluttery feelings in their stomachs until starting guns sound Saturday morning.

Suspense will end for athletes in the Open events when J. Craig Reid, chairman of the Qualicum village commission, starts them on their way at 6:30 a.m.

Mayor Jack Dobson will trigger the starting gun at 7:45 for the novice event, limited to B.C. residents who have no previous racing experience.

Tyre peddlers, racing for a first prize of a trip to the 1958 baseball world series, are expected to start arriving at the Douglas St. finishing line in front of the Times shortly before 10 a.m.

Several champions listed in the field of 46 riders in the Qualicum-Victoria marathon could threaten the Canadian 100-mile record of four hours, five minutes held by Pat Murphy of Toronto.

Although they are expected to hit the home stretch shortly before 11, leaders in the Open scramble could complete the run to Victoria in close to four hours, which would bring the winner of the first prize—a trip, via Canadian Pacific Air Lines, to the world amateur cycling championships in France—to the finish line about 10:35.

Biggest crowds along the route are expected to gather at Nanaimo and Duncan, where special prizes will be awarded to leading riders, who should reach Nanaimo about 7:45 and be at Duncan around 9. A special prize will also be awarded to the first rider past Chemainus, approximately the halfway point.

A good number of spectators is also expected to watch the pedal stars on their climb up the Malahat, where hopes of many riders will probably be crushed, and during their descent to Goldstream, when they should hit speeds around 50 miles per hour.

RCMP cars will escort riders in both events from start to finish. Saanich and Victoria police will control traffic along the finishing portion of the route and, turning west off the Trans-Canada Highway, riders will be directed to the left side of Douglas St. for a clear run to the finish line.

Chief referee Jim Davies of Vancouver, assisted by George Mortimer, Vancouver, and Alan Jones, Victoria, will watch riders in the Open event. Ken Magnall and Morris Neckwith, Vancouver, will act as referees for the novice race.

As bike stars continued to arrive today, Bob Tetzlaff, the California comet, was still considered the man to beat, although at least a dozen rivals are given a chance of whipping the Los Angeles ace.

The threat of rain has only added to difficulty of guessing who'll pop home in front Saturday morning.

Bitter Clash in Commons Over Unemployment Policy

The threesome will compete in the Open 100-mile event from Qualicum to Victoria.

Here's Where Victorians Can See Princess Close-Up

Victorians will have several opportunities to see Princess Margaret at close hand during her Centennial year visit to the capital next month.

Tentative plans for the Princess' itinerary here have now been completed, but still await the final seal of approval from London.

The Princess will fly to B.C. from London and her first public appearance is slated for Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. July 12, where she will be greeted by the Lieutenant-Governor and provincial dignitaries.

She will then drive to Victoria, through the heart of the city to the Empress Hotel which is to be the royal residence.

In the afternoon she will rest up from the long flight from England.

Sunday morning, July 13, the Princess will attend services at Christ Church Cathedral. There are no formal ceremonies planned in the afternoon, but she may take a drive in the southern Vancouver Island area.

A heavy program is proposed for Monday, July 14.

Princess Margaret first will visit the City Hall for official today.

The prime minister had declined in earlier Commons questioning to indicate the approximate date but today he told

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister: "It was concluded that the month of September or the period following would be a sufficiently early date to meet the requirements of the municipalities."

It would follow the Commonwealth trade conference in September, he said.

This conference, in Montreal, will open Sept. 15 and is expected to last 10 days to two weeks.

Mr. Martin asked whether a meeting earlier than September should be arranged in view of the federation's concern about unemployment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no earlier date has been suggested.

Them MP's don't need to waste their breath callin' each other names. Th' unemployed would be glad to do it for them.

But after all, th' jobless problem ain't so serious, unless you happen t' be jobless.

Unsociable fellers, the bike racers. Not a bicycle built for two in th' whole bunch.

Three 'Government Houses' Buffed for Visit of Princess

By ELIZABETH FORBES
Times Women's Editor

Government House will be established in three different parts of B.C. during Princess Margaret's visit in July.

Official residence of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross was burned to the ground in April last year. It is rising—Phoenix-like—from the ashes but will not be ready for occupancy for many months.

Since the fire, the lieutenant-governor's residence has been maintained in a wing of the Empress Hotel. It is in this suite of rooms that Princess Margaret will live while she is in Victoria.

For the days Her Royal Highness is on the lower main land, Government House will be in the gracious private home of Lieutenant-Governor Ross at Point Grey.

The establishment will be moved to a private home in Kelowna for the days the princess is in the Okanagan Valley.

It looks simple as written.

But the planning and the organization entailed to ensure efficiency of operation when the time comes for the moves in residence add up to months of work.

The wife of the lieutenant-governor, Mrs. Frank MacKenzie Ross, has had much to do with the organizing and planning.

Mrs. Ross Well Trained for Task

For months her desks in the Empress Hotel and in her Vancouver home have been covered with plans of rooms to be used in the three official residences; lists of things to be included in those rooms; tentative menus for the princess and her retinue; the proposed itinerary for the visit and inventories of cutlery, china and glassware available in the Government House storage rooms.

Consultations have taken place with government officials, hotel management and her own staff servants to ensure that everything is ready.

Phyllis Ross is well-trained for the tremendous challenge of being hostess to royalty and moving her home three times during the course of the visit.

She organized and headed a department of government under the Wartime Prices and Trade Board during the Second World War, and also was financial adviser in a Canadian government office at Washington, D.C.

For months now she has been calmly and quietly going about the task of trying to visualize every eventuality as it concerns the routine of Government House during the royal visit.

A start was made on decorating the Government House suite in the Empress Hotel last autumn with Mrs. Ross and C. C. Chapman, hotel manager, working together on plans.

Entrance to the suite is through a small hallway with dark panelled walls and arched cream ceiling. A round oak table holds a huge copper bowl that will be filled with colorful flowers from the Government House grounds.

In another corner on a smaller table is a bronze horse, perfectly cast. The horse stood in the hallway at the former Government House. It was recovered after the fire, cleaned and restored.

The drawing room continues the oak panelled walls and high cream ceiling.

A gold-toned carpet covers the floor, the same tone picked up in velvet cushions on the comfortable chesterfield.

Chairs are covered in English floral chintz in tones of rose, green and gold. Rose drapes are at the windows. There is a television set and a radio set in the room; a fireplace with electric coils.

Enlarged signed pictures of the Queen, Duke of Edinburgh and the Princess Royal and steel engravings of the Queen Mother and the late King George VI are on the walls.

There is a writing desk in one corner where Princess Margaret will find colored postcards and illustrated booklets of British Columbia for mailing overseas. Mrs. Ross will have these postcards and booklets in all rooms used by the royal retinue—as she did when the Queen Mother visited the province last January.

At that time Mrs. Ross said: "Nothing pleased the Queen Mother more. She sent them off immediately to relatives and friends overseas."

Chairs and tables in the dining room with matching buffet and side tables are of antique hand-carved oak. Graceful Georgian candelabra and an ancient ironware compot, with an mammoth Sevres ornamental clock and two huge Sevres floor vases, all brought by Mrs. Ross from Scotland for the new Government House, are main decorations.

Crimson rose velour drapes match the upholstery of the chairs. A life-size painting of the Queen is hung on the main wall.

Crewel work curtains of heavy English linen in rose, gold and with touches of blue, hang in the bedroom the princess will occupy.

Boudoir chairs are covered in complimenting chintz that picks up the golden tones of the carpet. Rose coverlets with threads of gold are on the beds.

Off this room is a bedroom for a lady-in-waiting. A lady-in-waiting will also sleep in a bedroom off the dining room. Others in the royal party will be in rooms on the same floor.

Before Princess Margaret arrives, flowers from the Government House greenhouses will be placed in all the rooms, under personal supervision of Mrs. Ross. Cream glass curtains will have been added at the windows and matching cream parchment and silk shades will be placed on the lamps.

Treasured ornaments from the Ross home in Vancouver will add to the charm and beauty of the rooms.

Split-Second Timing Necessary

When Government House moves to the Ross home in Vancouver, split-second timing will be necessary. Staff servants must be sent on ahead. Mrs. Ross must be there to welcome the royal visitor when she arrives.

Princess Margaret will occupy the same suite of rooms that the Queen Mother used. Appointments will be the same. Head dresser and ladies-in-waiting to the princess will be in rooms close to her suite and her private secretary—a man—will have rooms on the same floor.

Weather permitting, it is expected the princess and her retinue will spend much of the free time they have in the garden at the Ross home, high above the sea and with the snow-capped mountains in the foreground.

It has been arranged that a large private home in Kelowna, owned by Bruce Smith, will be maintained as Government House for the royal visit to the interior.

Here again, staff servants must be sent on ahead and be ready and waiting when the princess arrives.

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been asked to tell all I know about bicycles, and bicycle racing, and ESPECIALLY 100-mile bicycle racing.

Under the circumstances, which must be obvious to one and all, it seems advisable that I tell all I know about bicycles, and bicycle racing, and ESPECIALLY 100-mile bicycle racing.

Fortunately, I do not know very much about any of these topics.

However, I do know bicycles customarily have two wheels.

If they had three wheels, they would be tricycles, and consequently (a) easier to spell and (b) harder to fall off of.

As for (a), it is all too easy to spell bicycle, but who ever heard of spelling tricycle? And if you don't think it is easier to misspell bicycle than it is to misspell tricycle, I have the marks on a 1918 report card to prove it.

(Come to think of it, it is pretty easy to misspell tricycle, too. See above.)

As for (b), it is indeed harder to fall off a tricycle than a bicycle, but I have accomplished both, as what red-blooded Canadian boy hasn't?

Getting back to (a), it is a lucky thing we are living in the 20th century. In earlier times, bicycle was spelt velocipedes, celerife, velocifere, accelerator, celeripede, draisine, pedestrian curricule, and, for all I know, cyclop.

This just goes to prove how hard a time the pioneer spellers had.

The main thing to remember about the bicycle is, it is a two-wheeled vehicle propelled by the feet.

Fortunately, it is no great feat to spell feet.

As for bicycle racing, I have no doubt this is a very fine thing.

As for 100-mile bicycle racing, especially in centennial year, and ESPECIALLY sponsored by the Times on Saturday, June 7, I have no doubt WHATSOEVER that this is a SPLendid thing.

SELF-GOVERNMENT STRENGTHENED COMMONWEALTH

Freedom Given to 500 Million

While Britain has been criticized for her "colonialism" in the past 10 years, in this same period she has given freedom to 500 million persons who have chosen to stay within the Commonwealth—the Canadian Club here was told today.

R. D. F. Brower, regional information officer for the United Kingdom Information Service, said "Britain's erstwhile critics should inform themselves . . . not since the days of the Roman Empire has a single nation carried so great a responsibility for the lives of men and women born outside her shores."

Prejudices had arisen, he said because Britain's colonial record "is too little known and too little understood."

He continued: "Look where you will in these colonies, you will find that the British have put a stop to savage customs, opened churches, schools and hospitals, built railways, roads and harbors, and developed the natural resources so as to mitigate almost universal desperate poverty."

These changes, he said, "are revolutionary," and without example in history. And the move to self-government has strengthened rather than weakened the Commonwealth.

MALAYAN EXAMPLE

By way of example he mentioned Malaya which, since gaining independence, has reached a level of social services "higher than exists anywhere else in Southeast Asia."

"In Malaya one sees the fulfillment of Britain's policy of guiding and assisting these nations towards democratic self-government, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana, Malaya and others.

The Commonwealth has grown into one of the most remarkable organizations the world has ever known, he said, one in which members "stay together of their own free will . . . for the common good."

Council Monday will set the date for the by-election to be held next month.

Saanich Reeve Ash Formally Resigns

Reeve Arthur Ash submitted his resignation as head of Saanich municipality at a special council meeting Thursday.

Mr. Ash is leaving Victoria for business reasons. He will live in San Diego, Calif.

At the same time Coun. George Chatterton will resign as a member of the council so that he can seek election to the reeve's position.

Council Monday will set the date for the by-election to be held next month.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Is it desirable that a Scotish-born person who has lived in Canada 40 years should have a certificate of Canadian citizenship? And, if so, how does he go about getting one? W.R.T.

A.—A Canadian citizenship certificate is desirable only as an added means of identification. Going abroad, you'd be getting a Canadian passport anyway. The citizenship certificate is not an essential—you are a British citizen. However, if you wish to obtain a certificate, as many do, merely apply to the clerk at the nearest courthouse.

She wore a strand of pearls, gift of the groom. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Similar gowns in pink and blue were worn by bridal attendants Miss Diane Ellis and Miss Carroll Bailey. They carried bouquets of pink and blue carnations respectively. Janet and Sandra Bailey, flower girls, wore dainty frocks in pink and blue. They carried Colonial bouquets of carnations.

Best man was Ken McLean and ushering were Roy Roote and James Collie. Groomsman was Gary Mitchell.

During signing of the register, Miss Judy Park sang "Lord's Prayer" and "O Promise Me."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Now! During Hot Spell— Eat Light, Fresh Foods!

By PENNY SAVER

When the weather is so warm, I don't feel much like eating . . . do you? A lightly tossed salad or a wee dish of fresh fruit are just about all I need to keep me going! Seems to me, this is a chance for the heavier among us to lose a few extra pounds.

Low calorie type in foods are salads made of fresh green romaine. Tossed with a few crisp radishes and tangy green onions, here's a mixture that's as delicious as can be! Romaine is 5 cents a bunch, radishes and onions—two large bunches for 15 cents.

Watercress tops my list for being palatable and interesting! It tastes slightly mustardy and pep's up any meal, alone or with other salad greens.

Try it sometime. See how 10 cents of watercress is worth a trip to the store to purchase it!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Girl, 17, Says: 'I'm Still As Flat as I Was at 12'

Q. "I am 17 years old and as of now I have no bust. The rest of me is just fine and I have developed everywhere perfectly except for my bustline. I am still as flat as I was at 12. It is very embarrassing because I am a tall girl and feel that I look like a freak. I am afraid to go to a doctor for fear he will tell me that I am abnormal."

"Could you please tell me if there is anything wrong with me and why I have not developed? I am about 5 feet, 8 1/2 inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. My waist is 25 inches, and hips 36 inches. Please help me. I am almost frantic! I am ashamed and self-conscious."

"You are developing later than usual but the fact that your bust has not developed by the age of 17 does not necessarily mean that you will not have one. However, if you would like to see a physician, visit an endocrinologist. There is nothing abnormal about your condition."

"If you have a small frame your weight is just about correct. If you are medium or large in build you are underweight. A gain might help the bustline also."

Q. "When is one too old to take up sports?"

A. It depends on the sport. Men and women with no abnormal condition can learn to swim at practically any age. This is a wonderful middle-aged sport to adopt. You also can play golf from middle age on. Ping pong and croquet usually can be indulged in with safety. Tennis and badminton are considered too strenuous at middle age unless you have kept in training all through the years. Many folks past early youth enjoy sailing and canoeing. Always get your physician's advice before beginning some new sport or physical exercise."

Q. "I have been asking for hair wax and no drugstore or anyone seems to have it. Am I calling it by the right name? I want the wax to remove hair from my face."

Smart Entry Set In Cycle Events

Today is "Butterfly" day for entrants in Saturday's Times' Centennial Bicycle Race.

Training is over and riders in both the Novice event from Duncan to Victoria and the 100-mile Open chase from Qualicum will be plagued with fluttery feelings in their stomachs until starting guns sound Saturday morning.

Suspense will end for athletes in the Open events when J. Craig Reid, chairman of the Qualicum village commission, starts them on their way at 6.30 a.m.

Mayor Jack Dobson will trigger the starting gun at 7.45 for the novice event, limited to B.C. residents who have no previous racing experience.

Tyre pedallers, racing for a first prize of a trip to the 1958 baseball world series, are expected to start arriving at the Douglas St. finishing line in front of the Times shortly before 10 a.m.

Several champions listed in the field of 46 riders in the Qualicum-Victoria marathon could threaten the Canadian 100-mile record of four hours, five minutes held by Pat Murphy of Toronto.

Although they are expected to hit the home stretch shortly before 11, leaders in the Open scramble could complete the run to Victoria in close to four hours, which would bring the winner of the first prize—a trip, via Canadian Pacific Air Lines, to the world amateur cycling championships in France—to the finish line about 10.35.

Biggest crowds along the route are expected to gather at Nanaimo and Duncan, where special prizes will be awarded to leading riders, who should reach Nanaimo about 7.45 and be at Duncan around 9. A special prize will also be awarded to the first rider past Chemainus, approximately the half-way point.

A good number of spectators is also expected to watch the pedal stars on their climb up the Malahat, where hopes of many riders will probably be crushed, and during their descent to Goldstream, when they should hit speeds around 50 miles per hour.

RCMP cars will escort riders in both events from start to finish. Saanich and Victoria police will control traffic along the finishing portion of the route and, turning off the Trans-Canada Highway, riders will be directed to the left side of Douglas St. for a clear run to the finish line.

Chief referee Jim Davies of Vancouver, assisted by George Mortimer, Vancouver, and Alan Jones, Victoria, will watch riders in the Open event. Ken Magnall and Morris Neckwith, Vancouver, will act as referees for the novice race.

As bike stars continued to arrive today, Bob Tetzlaff, the California comet, was still considered the man to beat, although at least a dozen rivals are given a chance of whipping the Los Angeles ace.

The threat of rain has only added to difficulty of guessing who'll pop home in front Saturday morning.

Here's how you can follow progress of the Times Centennial Bicycle Race Saturday.

OTTAWA (CP)—A new RCMP building in Nelson, B.C., would help handle the "peculiar and incidental illegalities that occur from time to time," H. W. Herridge, CCF-Kootenay West, told the Commons Friday. He was referring to bombings and other acts of terror attributed to the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect.

Discrimination British MP Says

LONDON (Reuters)—A Conservative Member of Parliament today sent a telegram to Prime Minister Macmillan alleging that a recent Canadian tariff board recommendation discriminates against British wool fabrics and gives an advantage to Japanese, Italian and American competition.

Geoffrey Hirst, MP for Shipley, Yorkshire, asked the prime minister to make representations to the Canadian government during his visit to Ottawa.

Plunder of Hospital Taxes Sharply Denied by Martin

PENTICTON (CP)—Charges that the B.C. government is robbing hospitals of some of their sales tax revenue drew a vigorous denial from Health Minister Eric Martin Thursday afternoon at the first biennial convention of the Hospital Employees Union (Local 180) lay staff.

In turn, W. M. Black, secretary and business manager of the union, took exception to a statement by Mr. Martin that the B.C. government "does not participate at the bargaining table where hospital wage negotiations are carried out."

"The minister may not be represented at the bargaining table but his ghost certainly is," Mr. Black declared in thanking Mr. Martin for his address.

Following the address, Mr. Martin, in an interview, expressed pained annoyance at earlier statements to the convention by George Home, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor. Mr. Home, contending that the two-per-cent increase in the B.C. sales tax had definitely been earmarked for hospitals, cited figures purporting to show that part of the two-per-cent portion of the tax was being spent on roads and other purposes.

"This is terrible," Mr. Martin said on reading a newspaper report of Mr. Home's speech. "It's deceit. He had no right to say that. He was quoting from estimates and he should have used actual figures from the public accounts."

"Up to the end of the last fiscal year," the minister emphasized, "every cent of the two-per-cent portion of the sales tax has gone to hospitals plus another $2,000,000 out of general revenue."

In his earlier address to the convention Mr. Martin denied that the two-per-cent tax boost had ever been earmarked for hospitals alone, although payments to hospitals had "far exceeded" collections from this portion of the sales tax.

"The revenues from this tax all go into general revenue and Continued on Page 2

Strike Talks Fail; Mediator Going Home

By DAVE COWLISHAW

Vancouver Island, already tottering under the effects of a steamship strike that has so far cost it an estimated $3,000,000, was dealt three more blows today.

First came with the statement by federal mediator Eric Taylor that Ottawa could do "nothing more" to bring about a settlement now that his CPR-SIU talks had failed;

Second was Mayor Scurrah's admission at noon that his own personal attempt to bring the company and the union together had failed, "leaving no more chances that I can see."

Third was Black Ball's disclosure that it could not carry the summer tourist ferry traffic alone, sending reeling the "re-coup in July" hopes of hundreds of motel and hotel operators already shaken by losses averaging $300 a week.

FUTILE TALKS

Mediator Taylor dashed hopes that the Diefenbaker government would step into the dispute as he prepared to leave Vancouver after seven days of futile talks with company and union representatives.

"Ottawa can't do a thing more," he said.

"You people in Victoria are raising a lot of noise about the (federal) government not doing anything, but it has done something. It sent me down. That didn't work out, so now the gov-

Anti-Recession Policy Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in a general statement on government action to retard the recession, may have hinted today that tax cuts are coming.

He said tax cuts are among steps the government has already taken. It intended "to continue these courses."

The federal budget is expected later this month.

Expanded purchasing-power for consumers, a public works program and reduced taxes had been initiated, he said. None had been carried to its end and, none of what he called there three "tripods" was regarded as sufficient in itself.

The prime minister was replying to Opposition leader Pearson who had asked for

Bitter Clash Over Jobless

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons debate on public works and unemployment broke down today into name-calling and recriminations.

Works Minister Green said Opposition Leader Pearson and Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, were "Jeremiads" who gloated over unemployment.

Mr. Green made the jibe after Mr. Pearson interrupted the minister's long speech detailing works project she said had been "accelerated" to combat unemployment.

Mr. Pearson asked how, "in view of all this amazing activity," there were still more than 500,000 unemployed.

Mr. Green said the Opposition leader took "great pleasure in gloating over the fact that a lot of people are out of work."

Mr. Martin unsuccessfully sought to have that statement retracted as unparliamentary. Mr. Pearson was "very concerned" about unemployment.

"LOOK AT HIS GRIN"

"All one had to do," Mr. Green replied, "was see the broad grin on the face of the leader of the Opposition as he made the statement."

The minister added that Mr. Martin was "very much worse."

Opposition "weeping and wailing" had had an effect across the country on employers and unions. Was it any wonder that thousands of jobs are being lost through strikes and lockouts?

Mr. Pearson said it was "nonsense" to claim he was gloating over unemployment.

The Opposition was entitled to show that the government works program had been unsuccessful to the extent that more than 500,000 still were

Mayors to Get Federal Parley In September

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities will meet the federal government in September or shortly after, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons today.

The prime minister had declined in earlier Commons questioning to indicate the approximate date for today he told Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister: "It was concluded that the month of September or the period following would be a sufficiently early date to meet the requirements of the municipalities."

It would follow the Commonwealth trade conference in September, he said.

This conference, in Montreal, will open Sept. 15 and is expected to last 10 days to two weeks.

Mr. Martin asked whether a meeting earlier than September should be arranged in view of the federation's concern about unemployment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no earlier date has been suggested.

Here's Where Public Can See Princess

Victorians will have several opportunities to see Princess Margaret at close hand during her Centennial year visit to the capital next month.

Tentative plans for the Princess' itinerary here have now been completed, but still await the final seal of approval from London.

The Princess will fly to B.C. from London and her first public appearance is slated for Patricia Bay airport at 10 a.m. July 12, where she will be greeted by the Lieutenant-Governor and provincial dignitaries.

She will then drive to Victoria, through the heart of the city to the Empress Hotel which will make a speech from the steps of the buildings.

After a brief presentation ceremony at the buildings she will go to a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel to review a march past of troops.

Break Up, de Gaulle Tells Algeria Junta

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

BERGEN — A "Viking" sailing ship bobbed and rolled through the North Atlantic today carrying a desperately seasick crew and a condemned cat to the New World.

The ship, a 78-foot copy of an old Norse vessel, was attempting to cross to America from here in the manner of the ancient Viking explorers.

The modern-day Viking

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

United Press International
ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle called today for an end to the power of the revolutionary public safety committees in Algeria.

In a clash with the military-civilian juntas which had taken over great power in this North African land, de Gaulle said from now on he would run Algeria from Paris with Gen. Raoul Salan as his "delegate general" here.

The move amounted to a showdown with the committees, whose uprising against the Paris government on May 13 led to de Gaulle's return to power as premier of France.

"My primary mission is to assure the transition toward a reform of our institutions without civil war and a breach of national unity," de Gaulle told a group of officials here on the third day of his fact-finding tour of Algeria. "I must insist on the absolute necessity to maintain this unity of the country."

He said he had "long been determined" to give the Moslems equal rights with European settlers in Algeria. He said the next elections here must be held under such a system of equality—a plan which still appears unacceptable to many members of the European minority.

HELL TAKE OVER

He asked all the assembled government delegates to be loyal Frenchmen, and announced that he will "assume alone the task of Algerian affairs in the government" with Salan as his representative here.

There was no immediate reaction to De Gaulle's statement from members of the All Algeria Public Safety Committee, which only Tuesday announced that similar committees would shortly be established all over France, proposed by a "national" super-safety committee sitting in Paris.

But De Gaulle, who has denied consistently throughout the recent crisis that he was involved in any way with the Algiers Public Safety Committee movement that was carried out against the authority of the Fourth Republic, was emphatic in his view today that these groups now must bow to the legal power of his government.

GOAL ACHIEVED

"The Algerian movement has achieved its target—in other words, a change of government in Paris and a clarification of our national policy in Algeria," De Gaulle said. "The elements which had taken part in that clearly must change their (political) orientation now."

"It is not up to them to substitute themselves for the authorities and to infringe upon their powers."

Added to the threat of defiance from the public safety committee, de Gaulle faced two other stumbling-blocks today:

The Algerian National Liberation Federation in Cairo officially rejected his peace offers and said his Algerian policy will mean a continuation of the 3½-year-old Algerian war and its extension to the whole of North Africa;

Tunis accused France of new attacks on Tunisian forces in the troubled Remada region of Southern Tunisia where scattered fighting has been going on for several weeks between Tunisian and French troops.

Tunisia supports the Moslem drive for independence in Algeria.

Mr. Green was presenting spending estimates of the public works department. In 1958-59, he said, his department is asking for approximately $218,000,000 in main estimates and an additional $15,000,000, making a total of $233,000,000—"by far the largest this department has ever sought."

The government's policy of supplying mortgage funds had probably provided as many as 200,000 jobs, directly and indirectly, in the last six months.

1958-59, he said, his department is asking for approximately $218,000,000 in main estimates and an additional $15,000,000, making a total of $233,000,000—"by far the largest this department has ever sought."
